Frank S. Alexander

Sam Nunn Professor of Law at Emory University School of Law
Founding Director of the Center for the Study of Law and Religion
Co-founder and senior advisor of the Center for Community Progress
(www.communityprogress.net), an organization that helps US communities integrate vacant, abandoned, and blighted properties back into their economic and civic life.

As founder of Emory University's Law and Religion Program in 1982, Professor Alexander's work in recent years has focused on community development and affordable housing. From 1993 to 1996, he served as a Fellow of the Carter Center of Emory University, specializing in neighborhood redevelopment activities and low-income housing in conjunction with The Atlanta Project. He is an author of more than 50 publications in the fields of real estate finance, law and theology and community development. Professor Alexander has been selected eight times as the Professor Who Best Exemplifies the Ideals of the Legal Profession by the Emory Student Bar Association. He received his JD from Harvard University, his Masters in Theological Studies at Harvard Divinity School and his BA from the University of North Carolina. He resides in Atlanta.

Steve Hayes

Director of the Guilford Nonprofit Consortium

The Consortium provides training and networking opportunities for more than 250 local nonprofits.

He joined the consortium in March of 2014, upon retiring after a long career in Guilford County government. He is on the Board of Creative Aging Network of North Carolina and Partners Ending Homelessness. He also serves on the MPA Advisory Board and the Institutional Review Board at UNC-Greensboro. He recently joined the Advisory Board for the Philanthropy Journal. He has previously served as a member of the Work Force Development Board and Juvenile Crime Prevention Council and is a member of the American Society for Public Administration and the American Professional Partnership for Lithuanian Education. Hayes also works as a consultant and trainer. He has led Strategic Planning sessions with both government agencies and nonprofits. He has served as a coach for new executives and has lectured at universities in the US and Lithuania on Family Systems, Physical Indicators of Child Abuse, and Family Risk Assessment. He received a BA from Clemson University and an MPA from UNC-Greensboro. He resides in Greensboro.
